Notice of Strikes

DENVER March 10—The strikers on the Burlington held a secret session at their hall this afternoon at the conclusion of which a notice was issued to the officials of the Denver Utah & Pacific that all the engineers and firemen would go out on a strike to morrow. This road is a narrow gauge, running from Denver to Baby-lon, and is controlled by the Burlington by lease, and is used by the latter as a feeder to one of the richest coal districts of the state.

Quite a number of Burlington cars are standing in the D & R G yards filled with California goods, all roads centering here refusing to handle them. The situation on the main line of the Burlington is unchanged.

The Santa Fe Warned.

KANSAS CITY March 10—Last night engineers and firemen of the Atchison Topeka & Santa Fe road at Topeka through their general grievance committee notified the manager at that point that if they persisted in violating the notice of non intercourse with the C R & Q in refusing to handle freight transferred to or from the latter company on the 1205 a m on Sunday they would have their engines in a body.

Brakemen With the Strikers.

KANSAS CITY March 10—A meeting of engineers and firemen was held this afternoon. An Associated press reporter was allowed to attend and report it. The official agent of the brotherhood was present. Master C. E. Wilkinson of the brotherhood of Brakemen, who had come in this city from his home in Beatrice, Neb. He was followed by S. M. Powers of the firemen's association. His remarks Mr. Wilkinson said the engineers had a brotherhood was a company organization but they had promised to give their aid to the cause of the engineers and firemen. The interests of the brakemen were identical with those who left their engines and he understood that the brakemen were willing collectively to the brakemen were that the engineers and firemen would go out because they were not brought directly into a struggle at the start. The Pullman cars he said that the engineers were employed by the Burlington were incompetent. They felt the same run so low on the border that the engineers were constrained to take refuge in the cabooses for fear of being blown up. They have in many instances reported the state of affairs to the officers of their roads. Mr. Wilkinson believed that some time in the future there would be one grand organization of trainmen, composed of engineers firemen brakemen conductors and switchmen and they would be their rights. He closed by saying that in the present night the Brakemen's brotherhood would stand by those who were out in refusing to run cars for the Burlington road if asked to do so.

E. M. Stevens of the firemen's brotherhood assured the meeting that the engineers on the other roads centering in Kansas City did promised to help the firemen would follow suit.

H. B. F. Wells secretary of the grievance committee of the Chicago & North Western railroad followed Mr. Stevens in stating that he had received Aurora Missouri Galesburg Burlington and Creston and four calls for Brotherhood men.

Then the meeting was representatives from the C. B. & Q. Kansas City Wyandotte & Northwestern railroad the Missouri Pacific and others. All reports their men ready to strike if it was necessary for the success of those now out on the Burlington.

The chairman of the grievance committee of the Wyandotte road said his road was on the ground now and if a real cause he would order all his men out though all the officials on the road and his men were working harmoniously. To-day they had refused to move a train of freight consigned by the Burlington over their road. The engineers had sent three notices to the superintendent of the Wyandotte road to take the cars but that official refused to touch them.

Engineers at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY March 10—A meeting of the general grievance committee of the Kansas City Ft. Scott & Gulf road at this evening it was decided if the company persisted in handling cars that the Burlington road all engineers will leave their engines Monday morning. The grievances are reported to be numerous and becoming more serious hour. Members of the committee are arriving by every train and it is thought that all will be present by Monday morning. Switchmen will also strike.

Dispatches were received from Atchison Topeka & Santa Fe officials that all engineers and firemen would go out on a strike at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning unless the company should withdraw its order to handle Burlington freight. Dispatches were also received from Wyandotte Missouri Pacific and Kansas City Belt roads that their men would strike at the same time. The Santa Fe officials have refused to withdraw the order and the strike will be inaugurated at the time specified.

Strikers Will Not Yield.

DENVER March 10—Master Workman Miller of the Knights of Labor Assembly No. 1907 of Denver Colorado Central railroad, and Master Workman Hall of the Denver Utah & Pacific railroad, both of which roads are on a strike, say that the strikers will not yield. They claim that the Burlington has violated the contract with the Knights of Labor, and that they will not return to work unless the Burlington reinstates all the men who have been discharged since the strike began. They say that the Burlington has not the right to refuse to employ Knights of Labor, as they have been in the employ of the company for years, and have always been considered good workmen. They say that the Burlington has violated the contract with the Knights of Labor, and that they will not return to work unless the Burlington reinstates all the men who have been discharged since the strike began. FREDERICK THIRD.

The New Emperor Leaves San Remo for Berlin

He is Reported Looking and Feeling Very Well

Germany Mourning for her Departed Sovereign.

The European Press Express Cordial Sympathy.

Emperor Frederick Leaves San Remo.

SAN REMO March 10—Emperor Frederick passed a good night. He feels extremely well. He drove to the station at 9 o'clock this morning accompanied by Empress Victoria. The special train in waiting to convey him to Berlin. The largest crowd ever seen in San Remo gathered to witness the departure. The new emperor was enthusiastically cheered by the crowd and he repeatedly bowed his acknowledgments of their greetings. The empress entered the railway carriage without assistance and then turned and assisted the empress to enter. Municipal authorities and a number of civilians were on the platform. Large crowds surrounded the station and the emperor raised his hat in response to their salutations when he reached the platform. He looks well with the exception of his complexion which is somewhat yellow. He shook hands with the German consul the syndic of San Remo and others. As the train left the station the emperor was heartily cheered.

A City of Mourning.

BERLIN March 10—The body of Emperor William has been embalmed and now lies in the state-hall of the palace. His features are placid showing no sign of the pain he had suffered.

Regarding the funeral and other ceremonies nothing has been settled yet as all depends upon the orders of the new emperor. The will will not be opened before the emperor's arrival here but it is understood that Emperor William expressed a wish that his funeral should be without any pomp.

The city presented yesterday a scene of deep mourning. Sorrow was depicted on every face and the streets especially those near Linden avenue wore a very mournful appearance. It was a quarter to nine when the news was first made known to the crowd. At first silence was not believed, but the purple imperial standard was seen at half mast. There was no longer room for doubt. From this moment the crowd swelled rapidly and in a quarter of an hour a living mass of several thousand stood on Unter den Linden and thousands more came hurrying to the spot from all parts of the city. Deep emotion was visible on the faces of all as it was evident that the event had been long expected and that the people were prepared for it. The crowd soon increased to such an extent that detachments of police were sent off to the place and they closed Unter den Linden and the square in front of the palace to traffic and pedestrians. On the palace the purple standard was flying at half mast but on the crown prince's palace there was no flag.

Tokens of the Kind.

All at once at 11 o'clock the imperial standard rose slowly. The windows were opened and then seemed to be great preparations going on for the reception of the new emperor. Extra editions of newspapers which gave full accounts of the emperor's last hours were rapidly sold and the shrill cries of news venders made a strange contrast to the general silence and sadness. A few minutes before 10 o'clock cannon shots were heard. These the mourning salute of the guns which rolled like thunder over the city, while all the church bells tolled solemnly. Meanwhile carriages were arriving bringing different persons of rank who came to offer their condolence to the unhappy empress.

Practical Sympathy from Abroad.

BERLIN March 10. The North German Gazette says: The deep sorrow in which the death of the city sunk the German nation to a distinct shadow not only our own national feeling but far beyond on the character of the whole international situation Europe recognized and revered the emperor as a faithful and powerful protector of international peace. Although no honest man can doubt that his majesty's successor will live on monarchical and unchanged everybody feels the widespread which the disappearance of his dominating personality leaves behind. Only one can be satisfied with the greatest certainty from the signs of cordial sympathy in which Austro-Hungarian and English papers have vied with each other and from the still more touching attitude of Italy that certainly is not stand alone in her sorrow. We are convinced that the proofs of sympathy from abroad will reach even greater dimensions.

The Feeling in Paris.

PARIS March 10—With few exceptions which meet with general contempt both newspapers and citizens here have done themselves credit by the dignity with which they receive the news and the moderation and justice with which they judge the dead emperor. There is a further feeling of satisfaction mingling the crown prince as end the throne whose heroic sufferings have made him an object of interest even to his silver sister.

A Question of State Rights.

LINCOLN Neb. March 10—A special says the decision of Judge Dundy of the United States court granting an injunction in the suit brought by the Union Pacific against the state board of transportation has raised an interesting question as to the powers of the state. The injunction orders the board to refrain from interfering in any way with portions of damage done by the companies and prohibiting the board from interfering with rates or from altering or to make rates governing the road. The decision will be appealed to the United States supreme court. Under the decision the board cannot compel the road to do so much as stop at a crossing or mend its roadbed and it can discriminate in its rates against places and individuals.

H. T. O'BRIEN'S

The next demand will be for Spring Clothing. Everybody is buying this season of the year and particularly during the present boom. Just think how long it will take you to have a suit made to order at a tailor shop, how quickly and neatly you can be fitted by stepping into my store. The trade of making ready made clothing has developed into a science and there are but few men or boys who can not find just what they want in the ready made line without going to the extra expense and worry of having their clothing made to order. Then look at the difference in the cost, why pay $40 for a suit, when you can get it ready made for $20 or $25. Having been in the Clothing business in Colorado Springs for such a long time I have been able to learn just what particular line and style of goods is exhibited for this market and have guided my purchases of manufacturers accordingly. Also remember that I does is the place for Gents Furnishings of all styles and prices.

B. W. STERLE,
Manager of the GAZETTE.

One of the society papers in New York very conveniently publishes on its first page the names of its attorneys.

The tariff bill is sure to be defeated, not because it is not a good one, but because it antagonizes too many interests. If the democrats do not delay its death too long, it will not cripple them this fall. A bill abolishing the duty on sugar and fruits will practically abolish the surplus, and leave the tax on whisky and tobacco where it is. The democrats could then go into the canvass with their pledges fulfilled. The republicans will also go into the canvass in good shape if they support the bill. But the party that favors taking the taxes off of tobacco and whisky in preference to the necessities of life will not fare well in a popular vote. Either party will be wise to force the other into this position.

The news of the death of Thomas J. Potter, general manager of the Union Pacific system of railroads, has caused very sincere regret throughout the northwest. He has been the manager of two of our great systems of railroads. During the time that he was general manager of each, he was practically responsible for all the details of the management. That his illness and death should have called forth so much sympathy and regret is a great tribute to the personal character of the man. His career has been so extraordinarily successful that it is well worth dwelling upon. It also has some bearing on the strike on the Burlington. Mr. Potter entered railroad service in 1862, as a lineman in the engineer's corps of the Burlington and Missouri railroad. In 1866 he was appointed station agent at Albia, Iowa. He received several advances up to 1873, when he was appointed an assistant superintendent of one of the divisions of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy. In 1875, he was appointed superintendent of the Iowa division; in 1879, general superintendent; in November, 1880, general manager, and in 1884, first vice president and general manager. He began at the lower end of the ladder, and in eighteen years became the chief executive officer of one of the largest systems of railroad. No other railroad in this country has an officer who has risen so rapidly within the same organization. Most of our railroad men who have risen rapidly, have done so by going from a subordinate position in an old railroad to a high position in some new railroad organization. In the new field there has been a chance for the display of ability. A striking ability appeared, then a high position in an older road was soon opened. But in the Burlington organization, he rose by slow and sure steps within the organization. Mr. Potter had no family influence to assist him, but rose through his own ability. The road which gives to its subordinates such opportunities cannot be working on a bad system for the laboring man. Had the leveling system now demanded by the engineers been in force on the Burlington, there could not have been any such rise. In all departments, discrimination in favor of experience, skill and ability must be made to have such a career possible. His successor, Mr. Stone, has also risen with unusual rapidity. While family influence may have been of some help to him, it is conceded that it would not have been used had he not shown extraordinary ability. He began his work on the Burlington as an ordinary mechanic in the Aurora shops. His successive promotions have all been due primarily to the great talent which he has shown in the positions he has occupied. The Burlington, as we have before stated, differs essentially from nearly every other corporation in taking its high officers from within its own organization. Every man in it, therefore, feels the possibilities of high positions. It is, therefore, distinctively American in its spirit. No foreign born can receive the position of president of the United States, and every native born citizen knows the presidency is a possibility, provided he has the ability and the character to occupy the position. There are two systems which are utterly opposed to this American idea. One is that of caste, which creates classes. In such a state of society it is almost impossible for a man to advance beyond the class in which he happens to be born. The accident of birth, rather than any inherent force of character or ability, determines his position in life. An American citizen has none of these embarrassments. The most respected and dignified careers have been the part of men of the humblest origin. Another un-American idea is the doctrine of equality, as taught during the French revolution and by the communists of the present day. According to this doctrine, honors and material prosperity should not be distributed according to industry, ability and character. All property should be distributed per capita. When this doctrine is carried to its legitimate conclusion we can see any utility in manufacturing anything, in being temperate or industrious. The latter is the system which the engineers insist shall be applied on the Burlington road. While the Declaration of Independence says that all men are born free and equal, we all know that all men do not conduct themselves so as to receive the same results from life. All engineers have not the same experience, the same industry or the same qualities of character. It is self evident that it is impossible that this should be so. To give them all the same wages is to say that they are equal in all those respects or else that a difference in any of these conditions should not modify the wages. If all engineers are in justice entitled to exactly the same wages then all engineers have the same claims for promotion to a higher position. If there is only one higher position to fill, it discriminates against the other 799 engineers to promote one. The only just way under these circumstances would be to promote by drawing lots. This is the logical conclusion of not taking into account difference in experience, ability and character in determining the wages. The system the engineers propose, therefore, would make such a career as Mr. Potter's impossible. The system which the Burlington is striving to maintain is one which makes it possible for all men in the employ of the Burlington to have the same career that Mr. Potter had. The system which says that the length of service, quality of service and the ability and character of the employe shall be the only considerations which shall determine his wages and his position is emphatically the only position for a poor man without influence to support him.

RELIGIOUS WORLD.

Notes and Comments by the Rev. J. B. Gregg.

The religious event of most interest to this community is the coming of the noted evangelist, D. L. Moody. No preacher in modern times has ever drawn such vast throngs to hear him from all classes and conditions of men. At his recent meetings in Louisville 14,000 people gathered night after night to listen to his words. "The common people hear him gladly," and not the common people only, but men of learning as well. This man who when he began his career could not read his Bible without stumbling, now gathers great audiences at Yale and Harvard, at Cambridge and Oxford, at Edinburgh and Glasgow. Matthew Arnold finds himself obliged to discuss the hiding places of his power, and the whole English speaking world is familiar with his name. What are the secrets of this man's success? First of all his absolute dependence upon God, his sincerity and his clear grained human worth. He is an honest man in earnest to make right-ousness, truth and goodness prevail in the world. Withal he has a marvelous endowment of common sense. His eye being single his whole body is full of light. He is instant, master of any situation in which he finds himself. He is not a narrow and petty minded sectarian or fossilist. He is a living embodiment of the fine old motto. In things essential unity, in things non-essential liberty, in all things charity. He has the saving quality of humor. He is unselfish and broad-minded. He is of unbounded patience and determination. His style, as a writer in the Atlantic Monthly a few years ago pointed out, is modelled on the ne cons, homely, sinewy English of the Bible and Pilgrim's Progress and if we be in a sort of the highest. I hope that his coming among us may do this city and state great and lasting good, helping to bring about a general revival of righteousness.

BIGGINS WITHDRAWS.

H. I Biggins Withdraws his Proposition

Elect a Smelting Plant at Colorado City

Which he Submitted to the Board of Trade

Holden Still Considering the Question of a Site

The Biggins smelter will not be built in Colorado City

It was the news which was communicated to the special committee of the Board of Trade this afternoon by Mr. H. I. Biggins, the projector of the proposed smelting enterprise, arrived in the city Monday morning. In the afternoon a letter was handed to Mr. A. T. Chairman of the special committee, which was signed by Mr. Biggins. In this letter he stated that he had withdrawn the proposition regarding the new smelter which he made to the committee on the 2d instant. He did not give the reasons which induced him to take this step, though he stated that at some future time he might wish to renew with the citizens here, concerning the erection of a smelting plant in Colorado City.

The members of the committee declined to express themselves regarding the withdrawal of Mr. Biggins' action, but it is understood that his determination not to build the smelter at this point was irrevocable and final.

It is said that the city refused to grant Mr. Biggins the water privileges asked for, and that in his proposition it is known that he did not extend all of the money, it is said, to know what was the reason for withdrawing his proposition. Some gentlemen who is intimately acquainted with Mr. Biggins, instructed the Tribune Friday evening, that this matter would not affect in the least the location of the Biggins smelter. It is expected that at the next meeting of the Board of Trade a full explanation of the willingness of Mr. Biggins to comply with the terms of his proposition will be made.

Salt Lake express yesterday morning brought down from Denver Messrs. Moses Daniel Gugenheim and Meyer, all of whom are largely interested in the new Boldwin smelter. These gentlemen took apartments at The Antlers, and will remain in the city until this afternoon or to-morrow morning.

Yesterday afternoon they drove over to Colorado City and again inspected the ground which was offered them by Mr. Holden. As stated shortly before six o'clock last evening by a GAZETTE representative, they stated that they had come to this city for the purpose of considering the advisability of the company's location here, and would probably reach a definite conclusion regarding it before they left the city.

Murder of the Killing of the Workman Granger on Thursday

Dave Brown returned from Leadville yesterday afternoon with the body of Jesse Brinkman who was killed on the Denver & South Park railroad on Thursday. When the latter arrived at Leadville he learned that the justice of the peace of that precinct had summoned a jury and held an inquest. After listening to the testimony of the witnesses, the jury rendered a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to his death through the carelessness of a conductor of the train. Dave all blame for the accident. The principal witness at the inquest was Charles Eastman the engineer of the train. He testified that he was running No. 4 at the time of the accident. He was running at the rate of about 30 miles an hour when he observed what he thought to be a pile of rocks between the rails. On getting a little nearer to the obstruction he discovered something more and more like a man. He then reversed his engine and applied the air brakes, but was unable to stop the train in time to prevent it from striking the obstruction. The dog-fall moved off the track and the engineer saw that what he took to be a man in the road was only a dog-fall. He then started his train again and proceeded on his way. He did not see the body of Granger at all. He testified that he was not aware that he had struck a man until he was informed of the fact by the conductor of the train. The jury, after hearing the testimony of the witnesses, rendered a verdict to the effect that Granger came to his death through the carelessness of the engineer of the train. The jury then adjourned sine die.

One of the great reproaches made not only by enemies but by impartial outsiders, to the republic as at present constituted is that it cannot have any genuine salon life because it has "no women!"

Some truth there is perhaps in this but it is not all true There are several women quite remarkable enough to be the chiefs and leaders of drawing room gatherings only you must find them out they are not showy not offensive not at all demi monde

To begin with let us take in Paris what in Washington the press designates as the First Lady in the Land the president's wife Mme Carnot In the various courts of Europe there is no where any one better trained to the duties of a drawing room presidency no one more fitted to femme salon as it is termed, than the good looking well dressed wife of M Sadi Carnot nee Dupont White Not her own but her father's mother was British and she herself has perhaps retained just a little of the demure not to say Puritanical demeanor that distinguished the maids and wives of England before what is termed the "Prince of Wales era" This, however is by no means without a certain many people think, a remarkable charm With this is combined a slight difficulty of hearing on one side and the two combined give to Mme Carnot a curious originality belonging completely to herself, and to no one else She is, as it were, veiled by a floating atmosphere like that which surrounds genie in a fairy scene on the stage and lives behind this soft haze she watches you with a gentle but persistent attention that draws you towards her irresistibly, and makes you loth to leave She is not, perhaps, at first attractive but she charms and holds you fast

The republican maitresse de maison are at the present moment incontestably the best dressed women in France Mme Carnot and Mme. Floquet but the style is different in each Mme Carnot will look five-and twenty to the day of her death, though the presence of a married daughter attests that the forties if not reached must be close at hand Youth with her is riveted by health solidity of tissue and equanimity of temper Not a fold shadows her even fine grained skin or the bloom of her rich complexion, her large full dark eyes are lustrous as an antelope's and fix on you their intelligent and enquiring gaze from which you never feel the slightest wish to escape whilst the ebon hair matches their darkness of hue as it outlines the delicate oval of the face with its flat braide and defines the classical shape of the small head If Mme Carnot were not so attentive so anxious to pierce the kind of veil which uncertainty of hearing interposes between her and other people she might be on the verge of almost austerity but her desire to communicate with her surroundings her longing to secure your inmost thought add on the contrary to her sociability and make you feel directly at home

The Elysee is altogether a different palace since Mme Carnot inhabits it Mme Grevy was the worthiest of females quite unsuited to the metier of intrigue in which the public knows now that she lived—but she was the plainest of bourgeoises and would have befitted any counter or any back shop In her day the externals of official existence were neither beautified nor softened, the walls of the salons except for tapestries were bare and hard no flowers no perfumes no corners wherein to discover chairs bibelots no signs of the elegancies of daily life Whereas now if you pay a visit to Mme Carnot on a Tuesday afternoon her reception day you are first greeted by the sight and smell of baskets full vases full beds full of flowers looking as though they were in their natural place of being I say natural there is one of the great superiorities of the Elysee to lay Everything however rare or rich looks not as though it were got up for the occasion but as though it must have always been where it is—was there yesterday and will be there to morrow Though a very high born dame Mme la Marechale de MacMahon had no more of this science of the whereabouts than had the plebian Mme Grevy where is Mme Carnot is a mistress of the art The lovely where-abouts of woman as Edward Pulwer expressed it was absent from the Elysee under both the former presidentes whilst the where-abouts of Mme Carnot is lovely and such as thoroughly one with it It is an immense point and if it stood alone even would fit her for holding the first place and giving the example to others

If we pass to the other side of the river and enter the mossy gates of the chamber presidency we find another beauty of Mme Arnauld de l'Ariege whose distinguished figure and face is those of the goddesses of ancient Greece and one sees why a few years ago she won with unanimity from all who looked upon her the surname of Pallas Athene The intellect in this case is on a level with the person and charms and to the name of beauty intelligence and even Mme Arnauld de l'Ariege a worthy religion equal her self-command of however lofty rank in the modern world

Of the present (and late) ministers whose there is little enough to say as wife to the president of the chamber Mme Floquet is the superior of all and unless to mind particularly one of which she only is the judge owns to a mind to any one of them Her great is due to ambassadresses alone

Of past ministers wives are to be noted Mme Renouard and Mme Goblet and we may begin to open the chapter of memories Of Mme Renouard the least said is the greatest proof of charity But this again is embarrassing because she is not sufficiently obscure to disappear if not spoken of Mme Renouard many years back bore the name of Mme Constant and under the pseudonym of Claude Vignon gained a certain degree of fame as a sculptor and as a writer but was in either capacity without talent How she gained money enough to own a hotel some property at Nice and a house in Paris is a mystery for her appearance is the reverse of attractive and never could have been otherwise and the services she is alleged to have rendered the Emperor Napoleon III in social matters is said to have been connected with the ministry of the interior desirous of obtaining accurate information

However this may be M Renouard married her accepted the pecuniary advantages of the marriage and has been without exception requested on being made minister to leave his helpmate in her own home on the Mediterranean shores

Mme Goblet's case is altogether another thing She is a well born well bred graceful dignified woman who is sure of her husband's manifest advantages in a social sense, her position far superior to his and her charming qualities as a woman of the world have on many occasions stood M Goblet in good stead and will perhaps frequently do so again

Mme Flourens—whose husband is at the head of the foreign office—is by no means what is needed as a leading minister's wife because in the first place she is unmistakably ugly and does not dress well She is a very amiable worthy personage, and well brought up but awkward without the delicate tact so indispensable in such cases and is not yet accustomed to her position She is a trifle fussy and talks somewhat too much

Now, as to the prime minister's wife Mme Tirard She is one may safely say, a curiosity for she is there to prove to foreigners what the total nothingness of a French bourgeoise can be and that is precisely what no foreigner could believe save by ocular demonstration

Poor Mme Tirard is a negation all round She is not young nor is she exactly old no woman is so in France nowadays she is not absolutely ugly because she is so humbly unobtrusive but she is no the reverse because she is so indulgent If M Tirard were not the perfectly good and moral and in every sense honest man he is poor Mme Tirard's domestic comfort might have a bad chance for it is with her as with so many other wives whose husbands are called to spheres which are beyond their natural ones the wife of plain ignorant of the more brilliant world's ways and usages of which she only is the latter owes it to
